How Might the Teamsters Spend Your Money?

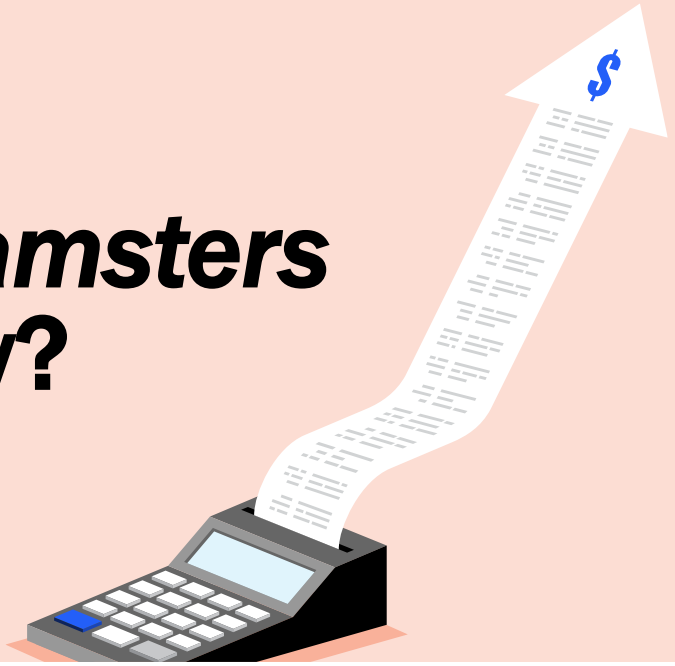
Union membership requires you to pay dues... so how might the Teamsters spend your money?



$1,800,000

That's how much the Teamsters Local 743 paid in dues to its parent organization & regional affiliate, the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (IBT).[1]

In February 2026, the IBT Independent Investigations Officer issued a report accusing two former Teamster officials, including International Union Vice President, Chris Griswold, of "abusing the union credit card, treating it as a blank check."

> The IIO report documents luxury meals, featuring top-shelf liquor and wine of $300-$400 a bottle, with one $890 bottle going on the union tab. Members' dues money paid for extravagant meals not just for officers but for their family and friends.[2]

$0

This is the amount of money the Teamsters Local 473 provided in strike benefits to its own members, according to its own financial reports.[3]
